This little home should make a strong appeal to new homemakers. The average newly married couple starts homemaking in an apartment and some in surprisingly small apartments. The reason for this in most cases is undoubtedly on account of lack of sufficient capital to build or buy their own home. Then again there are attractive houses to meet this demand. First of all the house must look the part. It must have something about it which brings it up to par with its larger neighbors.

The house shown here is the type which closely approaches the mark. The plan accommodations are far better than those found in the small apartment to say nothing of the pride one feels in owning his own home. With a small amount of capital invested the expenses entailed in owning this type of home should compare favorably with apartment rentals.

The plan arrangement is somewhat of a departure from the usual small house layout. A living room of good dimension serves a three-fold purpose, as a general living room, dining room and bedroom by means of a swinging folding bed. The small kitchen and breakfast room are much in demand; likewise the attached garage. On the second floor are three good bedrooms and a bath room. The exterior walls are stuccoed and the roof is of slate. Brick pillars support the heavy wooden driveway gates. The roof over the entrance door is interesting. A lot with a frontage of 50 feet would be sufficient for this house. Complete working plans and specifications of this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House H-A-141.

PAINFUL CORNS Loosen-Lift Out A little known Japanese herb, the discovery of an eminent German scientist (Dr. Sichel) instantly soothes the corn, callus, or wart, then loosens it so that shortly you can lift it right out.
